Ten Years After..
1976-1977

Grande Prairie Regional College
Grande Prairie, Alberta

Student President's Message

Derek Dutka

Grande Prairie Regional College has come a long way in ten years. Although the College has moved into a modern architectural masterpiece, and the number of students has increased more than tenfold, the College has still maintained the personable and individualistic approach that sets it apart from larger institutions. One must realize that as the College continues to grow, it will gradually lose one of the things it was created for; the friendliness and compassion used to instill a desire to learn.

As we continue in our education, we will look back on the days spent at this College with fond recognition. We will remember the dances, Christmas carolling, trailrides and other memorable instances (parties) where the faculty and the students were as one. We will also remember the comradeship felt as we stood together in controversial issues, on the playing courts, or in our own little group of friends.

The students this year have made a great effort to get out and support everything that went on in the College. Students could be seen in great numbers at the Tenth Decade Celebrations, the many Student Council functions, and the many athletic events held in the College throughout the year.

My thanks to all the students that participated and made this a year that I will remember for a long time to come.

College President's Message

Dr. Henry Anderson

One of the features of the 1976-1977 College year was an observance of the first decade of the College. One of the outcomes of the special events around that occasion was the recollection of the many persons and events that have been significant in the short life of our College.

Ten years pass quickly. This yearbook presents a collage of people and events which were significant in one year. It is my hope that a decade in the future, and beyond, you will recall the past College year as one which was significant for you in a personal way.

Faculty President's Message

Dennis Wieler

It is with pleasure that the Faculty participates in this YEARBOOK'S thoughtful celebration of a decade during which our College has provided a rich mosaic of educational opportunities for the people of the Peace Country. We commend the staff for bringing to a perspective on the present, both an awareness of past achievement and an anticipation of what may yet be ours to enjoy.

From students as much as from their parents, the Faculty has heard frequently of the duties which a college owes to society. And of course, colleges must bring excellence to the training of doctors, technicians, musicians and other specialists useful to the community. But these obligations pale in comparison to the claims which a college may properly place upon a society. For colleges, through their instructors, are the primary agents who transmit and interpret our cultural heritage, a heritage which defines the good life, specifies the duties and rights of men, and sets up the standards that society will come to respect.

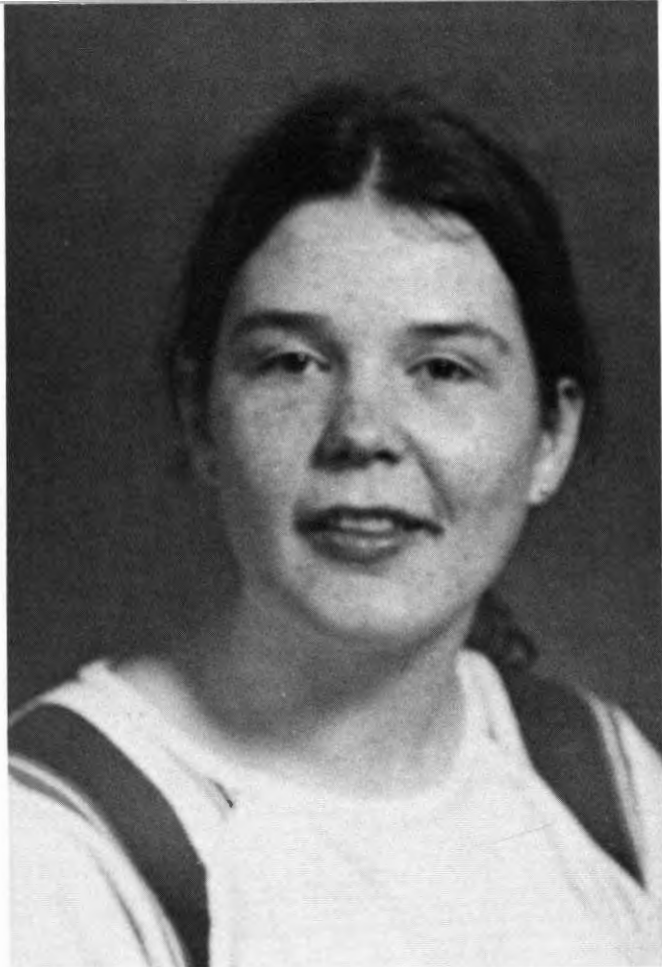

Understandably then, instructors have sought not only to educate but also, and equally important, to encourage a greater measure of self-education. To be sure, they have taught students to accurately observe and identify objects within a fixed framework of scholarship or of technological expertise, and they have promoted a continuing encounter with new people and novel ideas. But they have also encouraged students to go beyond this, to permanently apprentice themselves to the understanding and imitation of the greatest minds of the past and the most outstanding minds of the present.

The most satisfying forms of learning, whether formal or informal, are unquestionably rooted within the cultural heritage we share. This is as true for the study of pure mathematics as it is for the intelligent enjoyment of music. Such pursuits are but a small part of the whole universe of human sensibilities -- of intellectual, moral, artistic, religious ideas -- which is evoked by living and growing up within the framework of our cultural heritage.

To the students who bear eloquent witness to the traditions we share and who will continue to enlarge the sphere of opportunity for themselves and for others, we extend a sincere expression of good will.

Lonliness is captured in the shadows of your mind
Loneliness can never
Be left too far behind.
Loneliness is pressure
From a sad and silent hour
Loneliness forever
Awaits a sunshine shower.
Loneliness is covered
When thoughts are all let out
Loneliness forgotten
When friends are all about.

College Dedication and Tenth Anniversary Celebration

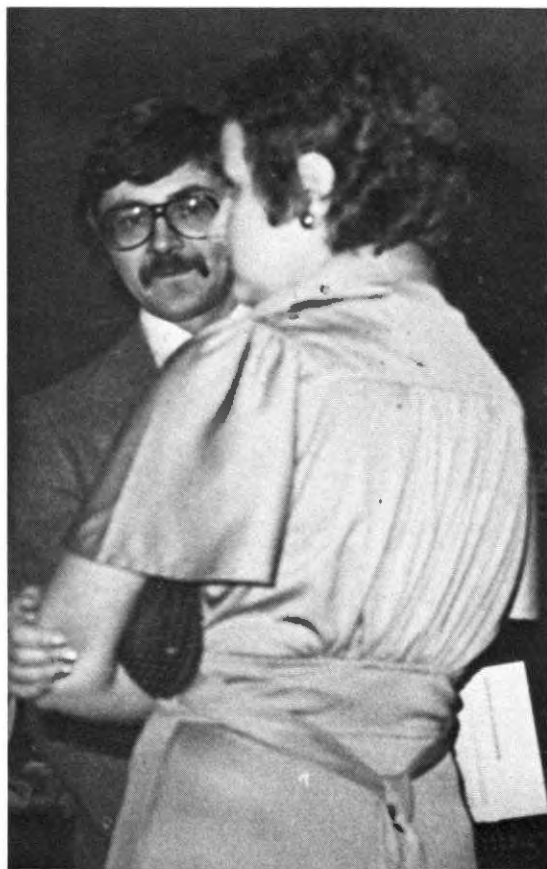

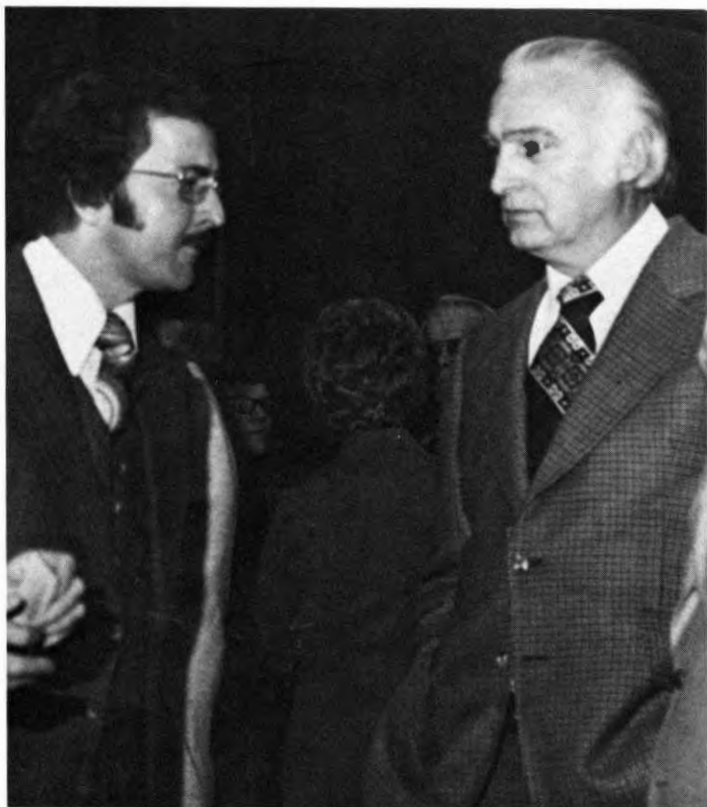

"A GREAT WARRIOR"

That's how Grande Prairie Regional College architect Douglas Cardinal described College President, Dr. Henry Anderson during the college dedication ceremonies Saturday. And the student's union acknowledged Dr. Anderson's work and his 'open door' policy for students by honoring his family who had 'gone without their father and husband.' From left are Dr. Anderson, his son Norman, daughter Brenda and Mrs. Anderson. Making the presentation is Bridget Kiddine and behind the group is student president Derek Dutka.

Editor's Message

Jane Van Polen

Creating this yearbook has been a learning experience just as everything in College is, from concourse coffeekbreaks to classroom instruction. When I began the yearbook I was unaware of the amount of time, energy and thought required to make it become reality. It is a project I would not choose to undertake again, although I am thankful for having had this one opportunity. The final product is one that has taken many hours of hard work and I hope it meets your expectations.

I wish joy, contentment, and love for each of you that I knew well and for those of you I never met. I pray that each of you can handle your future problems and obstacles with self-assurance, as well as an open mind, and thereby achieve your private dreams.

I would like to thank the following people for their help on the yearbook:

Marg Durnin (Advertising)
Russel Snoble (Layout)
John Campbell (Photography)
Richard Keddie (Layout)
Deanna Drozda (Layout)
Tony Lesperance (Developing)
Tom Golany (Advertising)
Denis Fagnan (Photography)

Cover Design was done by Kim Solar.

I would like to end with apologies to anyone who has been misspelled, mutilated, misplaced, or otherwise wrecked.

*Love
Jane*
