COURSE OBJECTIVES: This course will explore the early period of Detective Fiction, focusing on its beginnings as an elegant art of detection involving locked doors and complex puzzles. We will examine the formation of the formal genre, including the literary “rules” agreed upon by the early Detection Club, whose members notably included Dorothy Sayers, G.K. Chesterton, and Agatha Christie. From there, questions surrounding the modern fascination with crime as entertainment will be considered, investigating society’s obsession with the darkest side of humanity and the corresponding impulse to discover, reveal, and punish.

LEARNING OUTCOMES: Students who successfully complete this course should be able to

- use their writing to analyze thoughts and to express ideas effectively
- use their writing to respond critically to another piece of writing or prompt
- plan, outline, and draft essays that develop a specific thesis
- revise a text, adjusting style and content for specific purposes and audiences
- proofread writing for surface errors and correct the majority of these errors
